

Metco

"Nothing new is being asked for," Kornet said. "The statistical reports will be less complicated this year." Financial reports are required at the middle and end of the fiscal year, she said, and programmatic reports require nothing more than what Metco Coordinator Thelma Burns submitted under separate cover in May.

"We are the last town to sign the agreement," Kornet pointed out. Rockland, another town wary about assigning signatures to their proposal, finally signed last Tuesday, she said.

"Technically we shouldn't be considered," Kornet remarked, as most communities' proposals have already been reviewed and accepted by the state Board. "However, the committee will meet again August 28," she said, to review Cohasset's late proposal.

The Committee also discussed the legislation now being considered by a sub-committee that would give Metco, Inc. supervision of the local coordinators. "There is little chance of the bill passing this year," Kornet reported. It was further noted that EEO, the State Department of Education and school committees in general were not in favor of the bill.

Superintendent John Maloney noted one other Metco requirement that had changed within the past year — that money left over at the end of the fiscal year must be returned rather than used at the discretion of the communities. Kornet replied that though technically the money must be returned, in anticipation of money for the new year which arrives in October, the remainder may be used for expenses at the very beginning of the year.

ethical teacher who has a gentle and sincere concern for his students beneath his firmness, and a strong sense of obligation to them as well. His teaching is enriched by his wealth of experience in the theater, books, and travel."

When I spoke to Laura Leonard, a recently-retired English teacher who knew Frank well, she focused right on Wunschel's love for literature and the remarkable way he was able to transfer this love for reading to his students.

This, of course, is what we all strive for in the classroom, but very few of us have been as successful at it as Wunschel. Perhaps Frank will drop in from time to time to give us a few of his secrets. We all love Frank, and we'll miss him.

FRISBEE FUN is anywhere and this young lady proves point frolicking in briny.

Frank Wunschel

Wunschel To Retire

By Virginia Burbank

Mr. Frank Wunschel, one of the most highly respected

English teachers at Cohasset High School, has decided to retire after twenty-four years of service to the children of our town.

He has also served diligently in many capacities throughout the years: as social studies teacher, as chairman of the Social Studies Department, and as assistant principal of the high school. It is obvious to us who have worked with him that Wunschel has maintained the highest standards in his teaching and has been a real example to many of the newer teachers.

His friend and colleague, Doris Lahage, Chairman of the business department at the high school, remembers Frank as assistant principal a few years back: "Mr. Wunschel as assistant principal brought to the position the best qualities of an educator, an administrator, and a disciplinarian; he was unexcelled."

John Leary, our C.T.A. President, had much to say about Wunschel's contributions to our school system: "Mr. Wunschel's contributions have been noteworthy and frequently made at great personal sacrifice. He has never been satisfied with mediocrity from his students and always taxed his own abilities and time in order to insure that his students would profit from his efforts. Mr. Wunschel has always demonstrated outstanding professionalism, and we in the Association are proud to have had him among us. We truly regret his decision to retire."

There are many of us who hold Frank in the highest esteem. His friend, Ms. Patricia Coultrip, sees Frank as "well-liked, reliable, and a man with a keen sense of humor." Ms. Frances Cronin, also a fellow English teacher, remarked: "Frank Wunschel is a totally professional and
